TO WHICH IS ADDED

A SUMMARY FOR EACH PROVINCE AND FOR ALL IRELAND.

Presented to both Houses of Parliament by Command of Her Majesty.

INTRODUCTION

This is the Cork part of a document published by the UK Government in 1872 which gives, as it says, the names of landowners above one acre. This means that the vast majority of people working the land, the tenant-farmers, are not included and that clearly takes from it as a source of real information about the people of the country at the time. However, it is a good account of what it claims to be and is an interesting historical document.

One might wonder why it was ever published. It was not exactly the best form of public relations by the landlords, with a land war brewing, to display their land wealth in such a blatant, detailed fashion. In fact it was clearly seen here as provocative and was a great help to the land war agitation that was then developing.

Ironically, it was published to try to prove that the landlords were not as powerful or as wealthy as it seemed!

It came about because the Census of 1861 officially recorded 30,000 landowners in the UK, then including Ireland. This could be interpreted as meaning that this number of people owned about 80 million acres of land. This figure became a great slogan by English radicals and reformers who made hay of this 'fact' and embarrassed the landlords no end. John Bright MP developed the argument to claim that 140 people owned half of England. The issue became a political hot potato. Also, the reformers were annoyed that attempts at an English Land Registry failed because of lack of co-operation by landowners. Land then represented political and social power and it was becoming intolerable that a handful, relatively speaking, of people monopolised it.

The 30,000 figure was not strictly true because not every landowner had formally described himself as a landowner in the census. Several other descriptions were used. The landlords knew this and they decided that they would take away the reformers' argument by proving that the figure was wrong and that there were in fact a lot more landowners and therefore they were not as powerful, as rich or as monopolistic a group as they were painted. They proved the figure technically wrong by arranging for the publication of this Return but it also proved that the substance of the reformers' arguments was correct - a relatively small number of people owned an overwhelming proportion of the land. All the extra owners that appeared in the Return were not significant landowners at all.

However the reformers never succeeded in Britain as the Land League did in Ireland where the situation was transformed over the subsequent decades with landlordism being eliminated and the tillers of the soil becoming the owners of it. Not only was there no such reform in England but the situation as to who exactly owns the land there is now less clear than in 1872 because the Return has almost disappeared without trace and has certainly not been updated. The modern English Land Registry is totally inadequate as the only land registered is that which goes on the market. But the land of England is essentially not in the market place - it is passed on within the families who own it - and therefore its ownership is not knowable and accountable in the open way that is taken for granted here.

Top Landowners 2001

THE SHELSWELL-WHITE FAMILY 2500 acres (woodland). This family are the descendants of the Earl of Bantry, the largest Cork landowner in 1872. The house is beautifully preserved and was the first country house opened to the public in the Irish Republic. The title is long extinct.

LIAM CASHMAN is the owner of the Rathbarry Stud at Fermoy founded by his father in 1935. In addition to the stud there is an extensive farm. Cashman is a long-term member of the now-thriving Irish bloodstock industry, and lists his hobbies as horseracing and GAA sports. Acreage not known. He is married with one son and one daughter.

MICHAEL MURPHY is reckoned to be one of the largest dairy farmers in this huge county and also in the country. He was educated at the Christian Brothers school in Cork and has an MBA from Cork University. Unusually he did not enter farming until he was 25 and served a stint in the Norwegian Merchant Navy before that. He is now thought to own over 1000 acres. He is married with two sons and two daughters.

RORY O'BRIEN, is a major pig-breeder at Killicane near Mitchelstown under the name Rory and Monica Pig Enterprises. In addition they own the Clonmel Arms Hotel, a feedstock company and a construction company. He is the chairman of the Industrial Committee of the Irish Farmers Association and lists his hobbies as hunting and racing.

LOIS, COUNTESS OF BANDON AND LADY JENNIFER JANE BERNARD. The Countess, who is Australian, still lives at the ancestral home of the Bernard family at Castle Bernard near Bandon with her daughter. The title became extinct when the 5th Earl died in 1979. He was Air Chief Marshall of the Royal Air Force, one of three Irishmen to hold that position since World War Two. He held the Distinguished Flying Cross of the USAF for his service in the Far East against the Japanese. His heir was his twin brother who predeceased him. The family still have some land in the area.

SIR RICHARD LA TOUCHE COLTHURST, the 9th Baronet, was born in 1928. The family still farm in the area and he began the highly successful Blarney Castle International Three Day Event in 1992. Educated at Harrow and Cambridge, his son and heir, Charles, is a solicitor in Cork.

Significant Institutional Landowners

1872: The Church of Ireland owned 1914 acres. Various Catholic orders of nuns owned 938 acres. The Railway Companies owned 3344 acres.

2001: Coillte owns 104,130 acres.
